1. Between 500 and 600 Korean Volunteer Army troops entered Antung with the Chinese Communist Forces. The taking of Antung by Communist troops on 9 June was previously reported [REDACTED]. The Korean troops had previously been fighting in the Tungtien (125-57, 41-41) area and had advanced on Antung via Keantien (124-46, 40-44) and Chuliucheng (124-27, 40-12).

2. The Korean Volunteer Army troops are assisting the Chinese Communist troops in Antung in the performance of guard duties. All the Korean Volunteer Army troops (in Antung) possess rifles, and many carry grenades. They have several light machine guns, but it is believed that they do not possess any artillery pieces.
